

MANY SURPRISES SPRUNG IN ELECTIONS ALL OVER THE COUNTRY

THE DAY BOOK

An Adless Daily Newspaper.

N. D. Cochran,
Editor and Publisher.
500 South Peoria St.

396

Tel. Monroe 353.
Automatic 51-422.
By Mail, 50 Cents a Month.

VOL. 3, NO. 33

Chicago, Wednesday, Nov. 5, 1913

ONE CENT

JUDGE M'GOORTY TAKES A WALLOP AT PROFESSIONAL BONDSMEN

*Sends Sol Lewinsohn to Jail for Contempt of Court—
Outcome of Case Where Lewinsohn Sought to Hold Widow's Indemnity Bond.*

Judge McGoorty yesterday struck a heavy blow at the professional bondsmen who infest the Chicago courts by sentencing Sol Lewinsohn, one of the type, to jail for contempt of court.

Lewinsohn is probably the most powerful bondsman in Chicago. His activity even exceeds the operations of the Ike Roderick-Aaron Andrews trust, which controls the bonding business at the South Clark street station.

This same bondsman was barred by Federal Judge Landis from coming into his courtroom. Lewinsohn got into trouble that time due to his eagerness to furnish an indemnity bond for Jack Johnson when the big negro was in the white slave mess.

Lewinsohn's latest trouble comes from the complaint of a widow, who supports herself by working as a domestic in the home of a University of Chicago professor.

The woman is Mrs. Hannah Tremmerling. About three years ago she and her daughter came here from Pittsburgh. The woman supported herself and the girl.

One day the daughter went to the mother and told her she had "knocked." And she was in a delicate condition. The man in the case had fled.

An illegal operation was performed and the girl died. The mother was